"We are happy to have learned what we did in advance of any renovations," its Facebook page states.

The business still plans on moving to Tiffin, and is asking anyone who knows of a stand-alone building that may work to private message the business.

"Our research over the last couple years shows that much of our business is from Tiffin and Seneca County. We have the opportunity and the time is right to move our business here and provide a family friendly activity center to the community," owner Tim Thwaites said.

Rolling Thunder has been a staple of the Findlay-Hancock County community since the end of 2010, providing kids and family entertainment through a skating rink, arcade, birthday party services, as well as skate sales and repair.

The same amenities will be offered in the Tiffin location, which is anticipated to be larger than the current Findlay location, allowing for the possibility of a larger rink and/or more entertainment options.

Tiffin Mayor Aaron Montz supports the planned development. "I am pleased that Tim is looking at Tiffin to relocate his operations and the City of Tiffin will do whatever we can to help facilitate the move," he said.
